INTRODUCTION

Although a considerable amount of the material in the Hans and Sonja Roeder Collection relates to the business, professional and social affairs of Hans Hermann Roeder, a professional engineer and long-time editor of The German Canadian Business Review, most of this collection is concerned with the organizational activities and interests of his late wife, Sonja Helena Roeder (sometimes abbreviated in the body of the finding aid as S.H.R.). Because of Sonja's active involvement in a wide range of citizenship and social-cultural-service organizations which represented a vary of local, regional, provincial and national interests, the importance of these papers is that they provide a valuable source of documentation on the affairs of those associations as well as her role in their development. At this point, it should also be noted that certain parallels existed in the evolution of Sonja's personal career of public service and that of several of the ethnic organizations to which she belonged, for both she and they seemed to have chosen the same moment in time to reach beyond the immediate concerns and interests of the local German Canadian community to address the wider needs of a much broader constituency which was multicultural by nature and national in scope.

Sonja Helena Roeder (née Arndt) was born in Koenigsberg, East Prussia, on 24 May 1925. She married Hans Hermann Roeder on 4 August 1948. In 1954, she and Hans left Germany and emigrated to Canada. The Roeders settled in Winnipeg where Sonja quickly distinguished herself as a most active member in the organizational life of the local German Canadian community. As a result of her early work in the German Canadian community, Sonja was propelled onto a path that would eventually lead her to effect many of the ideals of a multicultural society and, as well, would earn her a good measure of local and national prominence.

Indeed, Sonja herself seemed to suggest that her growing role as an advocate of multiculturalism was more a part of a collective response on the part of various ethnic communities in Winnipeg rather than an exclusively personal one. As she put it:

I was nominated by the Trans-Canada Alliance of German-Canadians to be a member of the Citizenship Council of Manitoba...I had an idea we should have a International Centre where immigrants could meet each other and get to know native Canadians. I found many others had the same idea.¹

But, concerning the establishment of the International Centre of Winnipeg as "an amazing tapestry of interlocking community services" for the immigrant community, it has also been said that Sonja "was its inspiration, its driving force, its chief support, its strongest advocate and its founder and creator."² Hence, if the latter view is accepted, then Sonja was much more the creator than the creation of those new currents of thought defining the needs and reality of multiculturalism.

Certainly, even the briefest appreciation of her career in Canada clearly emphasizes the fact that Sonja was a dynamic person and a natural leader. She was a member of the Citizenship Council of Manitoba for fifteen years, five of which were spent as its president. She was the founder and, as well, an early president of the International Centre of Winnipeg, a centennial project of the Citizenship Council of Manitoba which was realized in March 1969. Moreover, Sonja was a board member of the Canadian Citizenship Council and, in 1972, became the president of its successor-organization, the Canadian Citizenship Federation. While serving the last year of her two-year term in that office, she assumed additional responsibilities as executive director of the International Centre, a post which she held until her death in 1975.

Sonja's active participation in various German Canadian associations in Winnipeg also directed her to reach outward into the mainstream of Canadian society in other ways as well. For example, through her membership in the "German-Canadian Women's Committee," she began to focus some of her energies upon the particular problems faced by all women in this country, whether native Canadians or newcomers. As a result of this, she involved herself in the Women's Club, and various women's work-shops and conferences.

In addition to the above, she was associated with a number of other local, provincial and national organizations. She was a board member of the Children's Aid Society of Winnipeg, the Manitoba Human Rights Association, and the Community Welfare Planning Council of Winnipeg. She was active in the Women's Progressive Conservative Association, was appointed to the Minister's Advisory Committee on Multiculturalism for Manitoba, and served as a member on the "Canada Week Committee." As well, Sonja was a professional writer and a member of both provincial and national ethnic press associations.

Hans Hermann Roeder is an engineer who has been a long-standing member of the German Canadian Business and Professional Association. Between 1959 and 1974, he served as editor of that association's publication, The German Canadian Business Review. Hans has also been a member of various ethnic press associations for many years, and served as president of the Canada Press Club from 1968-1974. He, too, had been involved with several local German societies in Winnipeg, the International Centre, and the Citizenship Council of Manitoba. Also, he served for many years as a member of the Prairie Implement Manufacturers Association Metric Committee.

Most documentation in the collection is in the English language. Records of German language organizations are primarily in the German language. The collection also holds a few scattered items written in Chinese, French, Italian and Ukrainian. The papers have been arranged in three principal series, as follows:

Personal Papers, n.d., 1924-1976. 7 cm. (vol. 1, files 1-9)

These files contain: the personal papers of Hans Roeder, as well as the personal correspondence of Hans and Sonja Roeder; Sonja Roeder's agenda, notes and monthly calendars; obituaries and notices concerning Sonja Roeder's death.

Organizational Records, n.d., 1949-1983. 3.16 m. (vol. 1, file 10 - vol. 16, file 15)

Records consist of documentation accumulated by Hans and Sonja Roeder on those organizations and activities in which they had been involved. Files have been arranged alphabetically, by name of organization, special project or other activity. The main "record groups" within the series have been further sub-divided and alphabetically arranged according to the "creating" boards, committees or other agencies under the main heading of the individual sponsoring organization. Apart from this, the internal order and relationship between the files is, in all cases, chronological. This series includes: proceedings, which encompass minutes, agendas, notices and reports for organizational business meetings, seminars and conferences; correspondence and memoranda; notes; membership lists; circulars, programmes and leaflets; newsletters; etc.

Published Material, n.d., 1950-1974. 34 cm. (vol. 16, file 16 - vol. 17, file 28)

This series includes: newspaper clippings; published reports and addresses; samples of publications used in German language schools in Manitoba and Saskatchewan; serials and magazines published by ethnic and other organizations.
