INTRODUCTION

The Dunkelman Gallery records form an outstanding collection of records for the study of Canadian art history. Owners Ben and Yael Dunkelman opened their gallery in Toronto in 1967 during that turbulent period of Vietnam and social upheaval. Until its closing in 1973 the Dunkelman's introduced the Toronto art community to international avant-garde movements as well as the early 20th century painters and sculptors of the School of Paris.

Some of the many famous Canadian and foreign artists and sculptors who corresponded with the Dunkelmans represented in the collection are Larry Bell, Andre Bieler, Gene Davis, Jacob Epstein, Sorel Etrog, Patterson Ewen, Jacques Hurtubise, Richard Lacroix, Henri Laurens, Guido Molinari, Louise Nevelson, Toni Onley, William Ronald, Claude Tousignant and Yves Trudeau. Although short-lived, the Gallery mounted several large and ambitious exhibitions which brought new Canadian talent to the attention of the international art community. It should be noted that this is the only collection of a private art gallery held by the National Archives of Canada.
