ADMINISTRATIVE HISTORY

The United Society for the Propagation of the Gospel was formed in 1965 by a merger of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts (commonly known as the SPG or SPGFP) and the Universities Mission to Central Africa (est. 1837). Of its two constituent predecessors, only the SPG was active in Canada.

The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel was founded in London in 1701 at the instance of the Reverend Dr. Thomas Bray (1656-1730), rector of Sheldon. Bray had already, in 1699, been instrumental in founding the Church of England's Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge (see MG17 B9), whose chief purpose was to foster Christian education and the production of Christian literature in Great Britain and its colonies. After visiting Maryland in 1699 as the Bishop of London's commissary, however, Bray was so impressed by the spiritual destitution in the British colonies that he urged the creation of a missionary society to provide clergy to minister to the settlers and to convert the heathen. The project was initiated at a meeting of the SPCK in May 1701 and the Royal Charter of the SPG was obtained on 16 June 1701.

Although the later work of the SPG extended to all parts of the British Empire, its first efforts were confined to the east coast of North America. Its work in Canada began in 1703 with the adoption of the Reverend John Jackson, a missionary to Newfoundland, who had already been sent to that island by private subscription. By 1728 it had extended its efforts to Nova Scotia and was operating in Quebec by 1759, New Brunswick by 1769, and Ontario by 1784.

The Church of England's missionary work in western and northern Canada was actually begun, in 1820, by the Church Missionary Society (see MG17 B2), but within a generation the SPG too was moving westward. In 1851 it sent the Reverend W. Henry Taylor to take charge of the Assiniboia district and thereafter the Society provided substantial assistance to all the western dioceses. It continued to send grants to various areas of Canada until 1940, when the Church of England in Canada resolved to become self-supporting.

An early nineteenth century account of the SPG in Canada is available in MG24 J49. The Library of the National Archives of Canada holds copies of the Society's Annual Reports and Sermons, 1701-1844, on seven reels of microfilm (call number ML 405) as well as the Society's Classified Digest of the Records, 1701-1892 (London: 1893), which includes its missionary rolls for each province (BV 2500 A 3). A longer and more detailed historical sketch of the SPG may be found at the beginning of the original finding aid on microfilm reel C-4497.

ACQUISITION HISTORY

In 1913, the National Archives of Canada began its copying of those records of the SPG that relate to Canada with the transcription of one small excerpt from the first volume of Series B correspondence. Systematic copying in the Society's archives in London only began in 1923, however, when further transcription from the B Series was undertaken. Copying from the D Series followed and continued on a regular basis until 1940. After the Second World War, D.78 was transcribed in 1948 and Box 1/1 of the C Series in 1950. These transcripts were sometimes supplemented by photostats (usually negatives) of printed and graphic items and of one native language manuscript.

The National Archives of Canada selected the SPG records to be among the first that it microfilmed, with D.39 on reels A-28 and A-29 being received in 1952. Since the SPG was in the process of rearranging its records, however, filming was temporarily halted at that time. Reels A-152 to A-250 were received in 1955. Except in the case of C. Box 1/1, the microfilm does not include the material that had previously been transcribed. In 1989, some additional missionary reports from the E Series were acquired, on reels A-1904 to A-1917, and added to the fonds. In 1991, all the material that had been transcribed and photocopied from 1913 to 1950, together with the original finding aid, was microfilmed on reels H-1994 to H-2007.

The SPG Archives made a number of further changes to the arrangement of its records after the National Archives' original microfilming was completed in 1955, so that the present arrangement of the records in Britain (and on microfilms produced commercially since 1955) does not necessarily agree with that in the transcripts and microfilms created before 1956 by the National Archives of Canada. The USPG transferred the custody of its records in 1986 to Rhodes House Library, Oxford, England.

The SPG holdings of the National Archives comprise selections relating to British North America from the following series and sub-series:

NOTE ON THE FINDING AID

The present version of textual records Finding Aid No. 285 lists the transcripts, photostats and microfilm selections of the records of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel held by the National Archives of Canada. It follows the original SPG reference and volume numbers which are listed in the column on the left hand side of the table. The middle columns provide the contents and inclusive dates of the documents. The columns on the right hand side list the corresponding microfilm reel numbers where the documents and (where applicable) calendars can be found. Where possible, page numbers are provided from the SPG originals or the NA transcripts to further assist in finding material.

This version of the finding aid was prepared by combining information derived from the various scattered lists found in the original finding aid and the "A" and "H" microfilm shelf lists:

- Listing of pre-1951 transcripts and photostats from Correspondence series B, C, and D.
- Microfilm conversion list for these pre-1951 transcripts and photostats microfilmed in 1991 on reels H-1994 to H-2007.
- Listing of records microfilmed between 1952 and 1955 on reels A-28 to A-29, and A-152 to A-250, which includes the Journals series; Fulham Papers series; Correspondence series B, C, D, E, G and X; and the SPG's calendars and indexes for Correspondence series A, B and C.
- Shelf list for the additional material from the E Series of missionary reports, 1901-1951, on reels A-1904 to A-1917, purchased in 1989.

The new finding aid thus includes the microfilms acquired since 1956 which were not in the original finding aid: reels A-1904 to A-1917 purchased in 1989 and reels H-1994 to H-2007 made in 1991 from the transcripts. It has not been checked against the microfilms themselves.

Within the fonds itself, there are a number of additional finding aids available to researchers. In most cases, the volumes copied contain their own internal indexes or tables of contents. Moreover, the SPG's preliminary inventory of its records, produced in 1954 and consequently valid for the Archives' pre-1956 copies, appears at the beginning of reel A-152. The National Archives also microfilmed the SPG's calendars and indexes, produced between 1934 and 1946, for Correspondence series A (reels A-163 and A-164), series B (reels A-164 to A-166), and series C (reels A-166 to A-169). In addition, the National Archives microfilmed the original version of Finding Aid No. 285 on reel C-4497. It provides a more detailed historical sketch of the SPG than in this version; an inventory of the material copied up to 1955; and two indexes to that inventory, one for personal names and one for place names.

The finding aids on microfilm are included here before the listing of the records themselves:

Microfilm, 12 reels, A-152 to A-162 and A-167.

Scope and Content

The journals of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel record the proceedings, from the beginning, of the Society's annual meetings. Prior to July 1832, the entries are unsigned copies; from that date on, they are signed records.

The National Archives holds copies of volumes J11 to J43 of the journals, 1747-1835 (reels A-152 to A-162) and of volumes 3 and 4 of the Appendices to the Journals of the Society, 1840-[1862] (reel A-167). For earlier minutes of the Society, 1701-1712 and 1736-1750, together with other records relating to the American colonies and British North America, the researcher should consult the SPG records copied from the Lambeth Palace Library in MG17 B8.

Scope and Content

The correspondence in the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel archives is arranged in several series with letter designations. The principles on which the division into series was originally made are not always easy to determine. The letter designations were those assigned by the SPG, but the series titles were supplied by the National Archives of Canada for the information of users and do not appear on the transcripts and microfilms. Selections were copied from the following seven series or “sub-series”: Series A, Contemporary Copies of Early Letters Received, 1702-1737; Series B, Eighteenth Century Correspondence with North America; Series C: Unbound Manuscripts; Series D, Letters received from Dioceses in Canada; Series E, Reports from Missionaries; Series G, Copies of Letters read before the Society; and Series X, Miscellaneous.

Correspondence Series C comprises unbound papers, mostly pre-1850, received by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel from North America, the West Indies, Australia, and other places, in the period 1705-1860, and preserved in the SPG archives. The National Archives holds selections consisting of letters received from Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Upper and Lower Canada, 1752-1860 (reels A-169 to A-214). Material relating to Nova Scotia, 1790-1850, in C. 1/1 is also available in transcript (box 2, also available on reel H-1995). The calendars and indexes, 1936, for the papers, 1630-1811, relating to the American colonies (reel A-166) and the calendars and indexes, 1936-1946, for the material, 1752-1860, relating to British North America (reels A-167 to A-169) were also microfilmed.

The microfilms of the calendars are listed first; the microfilms of the original letters follow in a separate list.

The early volumes contain the papers of several years bound together, but from 1877 they are bound annually. The volumes from 1859 usually include indexes. The National Archives holds selections consisting of letters received, 1850-1886, from British North America (reels A-28 to A-29, A-215 to A-220, and boxes 3-17, which are also available on reels H-1995 to H-2007). Correspondence Series E: Reports from Missionaries

[textual record (microform)].

1845-1885, 1901-1951.

Microfilm, 42 reels, A-221 to A-248 and A-1904 to A-1917.

Scope and Content

Correspondence Series E consists of annual reports to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel from its missionaries, arranged by diocese. They provide information—historical, current and statistical—on the various missions and on the activities of the missionaries, etc. Some of the missionaries merely filled in the printed questionnaire forms supplying the required statistics of their missions, but others often added additional comments in an accompanying letter. They often remarked on the economy of the community, growth of the congregation, work of Sunday schools, church building projects, and the activities of local auxiliaries. The National Archives holds selections consisting of excerpts relating to dioceses within what is now Canada, 1845-1885 (reels A-221 to A-248), and 1901-1951 (reels A-1904 to A-1917).

Scope and Content

Correspondence Series G consists of contemporary copies, dating from 1833, of those more important letters received by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel that were read before the Society. They are arranged geographically, subdivided by dioceses, and bound in volumes that were usually indexed. The National Archives holds only three volumes that relate to Newfoundland, 1842-1889, in which the chief correspondent is the Bishop of Newfoundland. The original letters are found in Series C and D.
