The Denholm Angling Club was a private fishing club organized and incorporated under the revised statutes of Quebec in 1891. In 1892 the club was granted a fishing lease to Lake St. Germain in Denholm Township, Gatineau County, by the Quebec government. The founding members of the club included Sir George Burn founder of the Bank of Ottawa, Robert Gill of the Bank of Commerce and S.H. Fleming, eldest son of Sir Sandford Fleming.

Over the years club members included such individuals as Major General H.A. Panet, Lieutenant General Maurice Pope, Vice Admiral H.G. De Wolf, Vice Admiral E.R. Mainguy and journalist Charles Lynch. In 1971 under a policy of returning leased private recreation areas to public use, the Quebec government cancelled the club's fishing lease. In 1973 the club surrendered its charter and liquidated its assets.

Minutes, financial records, log books and correspondence of the Denholm Angling Club. Also included are field notes of part of the Township of Denholm, and a contract between the Denholm Angling Club and Anatole Barbeau.
