INTRODUCTION

DONNÉES HISTORIQUES

Les introductions des instruments de recherche MG 26 O 7 et MG 26 O 10 brossent un portrait général des événements qui ont marqué le premier et le second règnes de l'administration Trudeau (1968-1979 et 1980-1984). Nous vous invitons à les consulter pour obtenir des renseignements à ce sujet.

Au sein du Bureau du premier ministre, le Bureau de presse devait non seulement s'occuper des relations avec la presse (demandes d'entrevue, conférences de presse, autorisations, etc.) mais aussi de la rédaction et de la diffusion des communiqués de presse et des textes des discours. De plus, jusqu'en 1978, ce bureau semble avoir joué un rôle de premier plan en matière de planification des voyages du premier ministre à l'étranger, particulièrement au chapitre de l'organisation des activités relatives à la presse.

Comme on pouvait s'y attendre, le rôle et la nature du Bureau de presse au sein du BPM ont subi de nombreuses transformations entre 1968 et 1984.

Pendant les huit premières années de l'administration Trudeau, le principal responsable des relations avec la presse était le secrétaire de presse. De 1968 à 1970, ce poste fut occupé par Roméo Leblanc, de 1971 à 1973, par P.M. Roberts, et de 1973 à 1976, par Pierre O'Neill.

En 1976, le Bureau de presse prit de l'ampleur jusqu'à englober toutes les activités reliées aux communications (incluant la rédaction des discours) et, sous la gouverne de Richard O'Hagan, conseiller spécial du premier ministre en matière de communications, fut restructuré pour devenir un véritable secrétariat des communications. (De 1961 à 1966, O'Hagan était le secrétaire de presse de Lester B. Pearson et certains documents reliés à ses activités d'alors se trouvent dans cette série.)

À la suite du retour au pouvoir du Parti libéral, en 1980, le Secrétariat des communications fut divisé en trois sections distinctes : le Bureau de presse, le Bureau des communications et le Bureau de planification. Il incombait dès lors à ce dernier de veiller à la planification des voyages du premier ministre à l'étranger et des visites de dignitaires étrangers au Canada. Le Bureau des communications devait, quant à lui, veiller à la rédaction des discours et des autres déclarations du premier ministre. Pendant la période de 1980 à 1984, Patrick Gossage fut le premier secrétaire de presse nommé à la tête du nouveau bureau de presse. Lui succéda Nicole Sénécal, qui obtint ce poste en 1982, et Ralph Coleman, qui prit la relève en 1983. (Pour de plus amples renseignements concernant les activités du Bureau de presse du premier ministre Trudeau après 1976, veuillez consulter les mémoires de M. Gossage, parus en 1986, et intitulés Close to the Charisma : My Years Between the Press and Pierre Elliott Trudeau.)

ORGANISATION

La série du Bureau des communications, MG O 13, occupe 76 volumes classés, par ordre alphabétique, en vingt et une sous-séries, dont les plus importantes sont :

Campagnes électorales (volumes 2 à 8) - documents regroupés selon l'année, puis classés par ordre alphabétique dans chaque dossier correspondant à une année.

Conférences fédérales-provinciales (volumes 9 à 11) - documents regroupés selon l'année, puis classés par ordre alphabétique dans chaque dossier correspondant à une année.

Entrevues (volumes 11-18) - dossiers classés par ordre chronologique.

Conférences de presse (volumes 25 à 30) - dossiers classés par ordre chronologique.

Communiqués de presse (volumes 30 à 36) - dossiers classés par ordre chronologique.

Speeches/discours (volumes 40 à 53) - dossiers classés par ordre chronologique.

Voyages (volumes 55 à 74) - dossiers classés par ordre chronologique.

Les documents versés à ces dossiers sont également classés par ordre chronologique.

Bien la série du Bureau de presse ait été fichée en anglais, un certain nombre de sous-séries contiennent des dossiers en langue anglaise et en langue française. Les dossiers qui composent ces sous-séries sont décrits dans la langue de la majorité des documents qu'ils contiennent, ce qui veut dire que les titres peuvent être soit en français, soit en anglais, soit bilingues.

SÉRIES CONNEXES

Trois autres séries de documents de M. Trudeau se rattachent directement à la série du Bureau de presse et aux activités dont elle témoigne, soit:

La série du Bureau des communications, MG 26 O 14 - dossiers concernant la rédaction des discours du premier ministre, de 1974 à 1984, et témoignant particulièrement du rôle du principal rédacteur d'allocutions en langue anglaises, Jim Moore.

La série du Bureau de planification, MG 26 O 15 - étaye les voyages du premier ministre après 1978.

La série du personnel, MG 26 O 19 - voir, en particulier, la sous-série de Madeleine Lafleur (1969-1978), qui apporte d'autres précisions au sujet des voyages du premier ministre, et la sous-série de William MacEachern (1982-1984), qui témoigne du processus rédactionnel des discours du premier ministre.

Soulignons aussi que la Bibliothèque des Archives nationales et la Bibliothèque du Parlement possèdent des exemplaires des discours du premier ministre Trudeau.

TENEUR DOCUMENTAIRE

Dans un commentaire portant sur les rapports que Pierre Elliott Trudeau entretenait avec les médias, Marshall McLuhan déclara un jour que le premier ministre portait "le masque parfait, celui du charisme". Depuis l'émergence de la Trudeumanie, en 1968, jusqu'à sa démission, en 1984, M. Trudeau a su, comme aucun autre premier ministre avant lui, entretenir des relations privilégiées avec les médias et, par l'intermédiaire de ceux-ci, avec les Canadiens. Voilà pourquoi les documents qui composent la série du Bureau de presse, 1968-1984, sont d'une importance capitale pour quiconque désire entreprendre l'étude de notre culture politique.

Non seulement cette série est-elle le recueil le plus exhaustif des textes des discours, des entrevues et des conférences de presse du premier ministre Trudeau encore conservés, mais elle témoigne aussi, dans une certaine mesure, de ses rapports avec les médias et de son rôle au chapitre de la formulation et de la transmission du message du gouvernement.

BACKGROUND

For a general introduction to the Prime Minister's Office (PMO) during the first and second Trudeau ministries (1968-1979, 1980-84), see the background information provided in the introductions to the finding aids to series MG 26 O 7 and MG 26 O 10.

Within the Trudeau PMO, the Press Office section was responsible not only for press liaison (requests for interviews, press conferences, accreditation, etc.), but also for the preparation of press releases and the distribution of press releases and speech texts. In addition, until 1978, the office apparently played a major role in the planning of the Prime Minister's trips abroad, with emphasis on press arrangements.

Not surprisingly, the precise role and nature of the Press Office within the Trudeau PMO changed several times between 1968 and 1984.

For the first eight years of the Trudeau government, the chief press officer in the PMO was the Press Secretary. From 1968 to 1970 the position was occupied by Romeo Leblanc, from 1971 to 1973 by P.M. Roberts, and from 1973 to 1976 by Pierre O'Neill.

In 1976 the Press Office was expanded to include all communications-related matters and activities, and was organized as a Communications Secretariat under Richard O'Hagan, the Prime Minister's Special Advisor on Communications. (O'Hagan had earlier served as Lester B. Pearson's Press Secretary during the 1961-66 period, and some material from this period of O'Hagan's career is found in the papers).

With the Liberal's return to power in 1980, the Communications Secretariat was broken up into three separate offices: the Press Office, the Communications Office, and the Planning Office. The latter assumed responsibility for the planning of both the prime minister's trips and visits to Canada by VIPs. The Communications Office was responsible for the drafting of the Prime Minister's speeches and other statements. The first Press Secretary in charge of the reorganized Press Office for the 1980-84 period was Patrick Gossage. He was succeeded by Nicole Sénécal in 1982 and by Ralph Coleman in 1983. (For more information on the Trudeau Press Office after 1976, see Gossage's 1986 memoir Close to the Charisma: My Years Between the Press and Pierre Elliott Trudeau.)

ARRANGEMENT

The Press Office Series, MG 26 O 13, occupies 76 volumes and is arranged alphabetically in twenty-one sub-series, the most important of which are as follows:

Election Campaigns (vols. 2-8) - arranged by year, and then alphabetically within each year

Federal/Provincial Conferences (vols. 9-11) arranged by year, and then alphabetically within each year

Interviews (vols. 11-18) - arranged chronologically

Press Conferences (vols. 25-30) - arranged chronologically

Press Releases (vols. 30-36) - arranged chronologically

Speeches/Discours (vols. 40-53) - arranged chronologically

Trips (vols. 55-74) - arranged chronologically

Within files, the arrangement is chronological.

While the Press Office Series was organized in an English-language filing system, a number of sub-series mixed both French and English files. Within these sub-series, files are described according to the primary language of the documents that they contain, which means that file titles can be French, English, or bilingual.

RELATED SERIES

Three other Trudeau PMO series in particular are directly related to the Press Office Series and the activities that it documents:

Communications Series, MG 26 O 14 - relates to the preparation of the prime minister's speeches, 1974-84, particularly the role of the main English-language speech writer, Jim Moore.

Planning Office Series, MG 26 O 15 - documents the Prime Minister's trips after 1978.

Staff Series, MG 26 O 19 - see especially the Madeleine Lafleur sub-series (1969-78), which sheds further light on the Prime Minister's trips, and the William MacEachern sub-series (1982-84), which relates to the writing of the Prime Minister's speeches.

It should also be noted that both the National Archives Library and the Parliamentary Library hold runs of Prime Minister Trudeau's speeches.

RESEARCH POTENTIAL

Reflecting on Pierre Elliott Trudeau's relationship with the media, Marshall McLuhan once observed that the Prime Minister had "The perfect mask -- a charismatic mask." From the first stirrings of Trudeaumania in 1968 through to Trudeau's departure from office in 1984, no Canadian Prime Minister before or since has had quite the same relationship with the media or with the public through the media. For this reason, the papers of the 1968-84 PMO Press Office Series represent an important source for the study of our political culture. Not only does the series provide the most complete record extant of Prime Minister Trudeau's speeches, interviews, and press conferences, but it also sheds some light on the relationship between the PMO and the media and on the role of the former in communicating and shaping the government's message.
