INTRODUCTION

DONNÉES HISTORIQUES

Les introductions des instruments de recherche MG 26 O 7 et MG 26 O 10 brossent un portrait général des événements qui ont marqué le premier et le second règnes de l'administration Trudeau (1968-1978 et 1980-1984). Nous vous invitons à les consulter pour obtenir des renseignements à ce sujet.

La série du Bureau des communications apporte des précisions quant à certaines facettes de l'orientation du bureau du premier ministre en matière de communications, secteur d'activités qui a subi de nombreuses transformations au cours de la période s'échelonnant de 1968 à 1984.

Jusqu'en 1976, le Bureau de presse du premier ministre devait non seulement s'occuper des relations avec la presse (demandes d'entrevue, conférences de presse, autorisations, etc.) mais aussi de la préparation des communiqués de presse et de la rédaction des discours. À cette époque, le responsable des relations avec la presse était le secrétaire de presse. De 1968 à 1970, ce poste fut occupé par Roméo Leblanc, de 1971 à 1973, par P.M. Roberts, et de 1973 à 1976, par Pierre O'Neill. Pendant cette même période, un certain nombre de personnes, dont Jim Moore et Jean Lemoyne, furent chargées de rédiger les discours du premier ministre à titre d'adjoint spécial ou de rédacteur.

En 1976, le Bureau de presse prit de l'ampleur jusqu'à englober toutes les activités reliées aux communications (incluant la rédaction des discours) et, sous la gouverne de Richard O'Hagan, conseiller spécial du premier ministre en matière de communications, fut restructuré pour devenir un véritable secrétariat des communications. (Pour de plus amples renseignements concernant le Bureau de presse, veuillez consulter l'introduction de l'instrument de recherche de la série MG 26 O 13.)

À la suite du retour au pouvoir du Parti libéral, en 1980, le Secrétariat des communications fut divisé en trois sections distinctes : le Bureau de presse, le Bureau des communications et le Bureau de planification. Il incombait dès lors à ce dernier de veiller à la planification des voyages du premier ministre à l'étranger et des visites de dignitaires étrangers au Canada, tandis que le Bureau des communications devait veiller à la rédaction des discours et autres déclarations du premier ministre.

La série du Bureau des communications témoigne, dans une certaine mesure, des transformations qui ont été apportées au bureau du premier ministre Trudeau en ce qui concerne les communications, cependant, le titre donné à cette série n'est pas tout à fait approprié puisqu'on y retrouve essentiellement des documents tirés des dossiers de travail de Jim Moore, un des principaux rédacteurs des discours en langue anglaise du premier ministre, de 1974 à 1984. Au cours de cette période, le rôle de Moore est demeuré plus ou moins le même, mais la nature de ses fonctions officielles au sein du Bureau de presse et du Bureau des communications du BPM a varié considérablement.

ORGANISATION

La série du Bureau des communications, MG O 14, occupe huit volumes où l'on retrouve des discours originaux, des déclarations officielles et des messages classés par ordre chronologique datant de février 1974 à juin 1984. Les documents versés à ces dossiers sont également classés par ordre chronologique.

SÉRIES CONNEXES

Deux autres séries de documents de M. Trudeau se rattachent directement à la série du Bureau des communications, soit:

La série du Bureau de presse, MG 26 O 13 - surtout les trois sous-séries suivantes : Conférences de presse, Communiqués de presse et Speeches/Discours.

La série du Personnel, MG 26 O 19 - particulièrement la sous-série MacEachern (1982-1984) qui témoigne du rôle de M. MacEachern à titre d'adjoint de M. Jim Moore.

Soulignons enfin que la Bibliothèque des Archives nationales et la Bibliothèque du Parlement possèdent également des exemplaires des discours du premier ministre Trudeau.

TENEUR DOCUMENTAIRE

Essentiellement constituée de documents en langue anglaise, la série du Bureau des communications contient bon nombre des discours en anglais que l'on retrouve aussi dans la série du Bureau de presse. Toutefois, à la différence de cette dernière, cette série met en lumière le processus rédactionnel lui-même; on y retrouve à la fois des ébauches d'allocution, la documentation qui a servi à leur rédaction et des notes de service connexes, des déclarations, des messages, des avant-propos et d'autres textes préparés pour le premier ministre. Elle témoigne aussi très éloquemment du rôle du premier ministre et de ses principaux conseillers au chapitre de la rédaction des discours et des autres textes.

BACKGROUND

For a general introduction to the Prime Minister's Office (PMO) during the first and second Trudeau ministries (1968-1979, 1980-84), see the background information provided in the introductions to the finding aids to series MG 26 O 7 and MG 26 O 10.

The Communications Office Series documents some aspects of the Trudeau PMO's approach to communications, an operational area which underwent a number of reorganizations during the 1968-84 period.

Until 1976, the PMO's Press Office section was responsible not only for press liaison (requests for interviews, press conferences, accreditation, etc.), but also for the preparation of press releases and the distribution of press releases and speech texts. The chief officer in the Press Office was the Press Secretary. From 1968 to 1970 the position was occupied by Romeo Leblanc, from 1971 to 1973 by P.M. Roberts, and from 1973 to 1976 by Pierre O'Neill. During this same period, the responsibility for drafting the prime minister's speeches was assigned to a number of different Special Assistants/speech writers, including Jim Moore and Jean Lemoyne.

In 1976 the Press Office was expanded to encompass all communications-related matters and activities (including speech writing), and was organized as a Communications Secretariat under Richard O'Hagan, the Prime Minister's special advisor on Communications. (For more information on the Press Office, see the introduction to the finding aid to series MG 26 O 13.)

Following the Liberal's return to power in 1980, the Communications Secretariat was apparently broken up into three separate sections: the Press Office, the Communications Office, and the Planning Office. The latter assumed responsibility for the planning of both the prime minister's trips and visits to Canada by VIP's, while the Communications Office was responsible for the drafting of the prime minister's speeches and other statements.

The Communication Office Series reflects to some degree these shifting responsibilities within the area of communications in the Trudeau PMO; however, the series title is something of a misnomer, as the papers consist primarily of the working files of Jim Moore, one of the Prime Minister's chief English-language speech writers for the years 1974 to 1984. During this period, Moore's role remained more or less constant, but his position vis-à-vis the PMO Press and Communications offices changed several times.

ARRANGEMENT

The Communications Office Series, MG 26 O 14, occupies 8 volumes and consists of Original Speeches, Statements, and Messages arranged in chronological order, beginning in February 1974 and ending in June 1984. Within files, the arrangement is chronological.

RELATED SERIES

Two other Trudeau PMO series in particular are directly related to the Communications Office Series:

Press Office Series, MG 26 O 13 - especially the following three sub-series: Press Conferences, Press Releases, and Speeches/Discours.

Staff Series, MG 26 O 19 - see especially the William MacEachern sub-series (1982-84), which documents MacEachern's role as an assistant to the speech writer Jim Moore.

It should also be noted that both the National Archives Library and the Parliamentary Library hold runs of Prime Minister Trudeau's speeches.

RESEARCH POTENTIAL

Largely an English-language series, the Communications Office Series duplicates to some degree the English-language Speech files found in the Press Office Series. However, unlike the latter series, the Communications Office Series documents the speech-writing process itself and includes not only original drafts of speeches but also background material and memos relating to the speeches, statements, messages, book forewords, and other texts prepared for the Prime Minister. Furthermore, the series contains much more evidence of the role of the Prime Minister and his senior advisors in the preparation of speeches and other texts.
