LIDLAW, Alexander F. (1908-1980). Educator, Co-op leader.

Originals, n.d., 1867-1980. 6.12 m. Finding Aid No. 1341.

Alexander F. Laidlaw was born in Port Hood, a small town on the west side of Cape Breton Island. He attended Saint Francis Xavier University in Antigonish (BA, 1929; MA, 1932) and embarked upon a career in education. He served as a school principal in Port Hood, 1929-1940; Inspector of Schools, Nova Scotia, 1940-1941; and Secretary of the Department of Education, 1941-1944.

In 1944 he returned to his Alma Mater as Associate Director of the Extension Department, a position he occupied for the next 12 years. While at St. Francis Xavier University he was exposed to the philosophy of the Antigonish Movement with its emphasis on human progress and social justice through co-operation and education. It was there that he developed his unremitting commitment to the co-operative movement as an economic and a social alternative. In his work with the Extension Department he played an important role in promoting co-operative principles in the Maritimes and throughout the world.

In 1956 he left St. Francis Xavier University to serve for a two-year period as a consultant to the Government of India and the Reserve Bank of India in the training of personnel for agricultural credit unions and co-operatives. Upon returning to Canada in 1958 he moved to Ottawa to accept the position of General Secretary of the Co-operative Union of Canada. In 1958 he also received his D. Ed. from the University of Toronto.

As Secretary of the Co-operative Union of Canada, Dr. Laidlaw acted as the chief spokesperson for the co-operative movement in Canada. He was also active at the international level as an executive member of the International Co-operative Alliance and as a consultant and an instructor for such United Nation agencies as the FAO and ILO.

In 1969 he accepted an appointment as professor of Adult Education and Co-operative Studies with the Coady International Institute at St. Francis Xavier University. In 1971 he was named Senior Advisor, Co-operative Housing, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. He retired in 1974 but remained active as a consultant on co-operatives and rural development for agencies such as CIDA, and as a prolific writer and much sought after speaker and lecturer.

Dr. Laidlaw died in 1980 shortly after his return from the International Co-operative Alliance Congress in Moscow where he had presented a major study on "Co-operatives in the Year 2000".

Presented in 1981 by Mrs. Alexander F. Laidlaw of Ottawa, Ont.

LIDLAW, Alexander F. (1908-1980). Educator, Co-op leader.

Personal and Biographical, n.d., 1927-1980. 36.75 cm (volumes 1-2).

Diaries, scrapbooks, birth certificates, passports diplomas, resumes and personal clippings. The diaries are not detailed containing mostly a record of daily appointments. The India/Australia scrapbook is an excellent pictorial record of his work in those countries from 1956 to 1958. Two other scrapbooks contain clippings primarily of a literary nature while a third is a complete record of Dr. Laidlaw's award of an honorary LL.D. from St. Francis Xavier University in 1962. Also of interest is a letter entitled "Dearest Friends" written in 1957 in which Dr. Laidlaw traces the roots of his involvement in the co-operative movement.

Correspondence, n.d., 1944-1980. 66.75 cm (volumes 3-6).

Consisting of both incoming letters and Dr. Laidlaw's replies, the correspondence touches upon all aspects of his work in the co-operative movement and the related fields of adult education, university extension and social and community development. His years as Associate Director of Extension at St. Francis Xavier University, as National Secretary of the Co-operative Union of Canada and his involvement in many international projects are all well-covered. Arranged chronologically.

Articles, Speeches and Lectures, & Notes by A.F. Laidlaw, n.d., 1937-1980. 1.4 m (volumes 6-13).

Over 500 articles, speeches, lectures, papers and related notes in which Dr. Laidlaw expounds his views on co-operatives, adult education, housing, Third World development and many other subjects. Each item has been listed in chronological order.

Articles, Speeches and Lectures by Others, n.d., 1898-1980. 41.25 cm (volumes 13-15).

146 articles, speeches and lectures primarily on co-operatives and related subjects. Each item has been listed in chronological order.

Manuscripts and Related Material, n.d., 1960-1980. 71.25 cm (volumes 15-19).

Manuscripts, outlines, chapter drafts, along with correspondence with publishers and friends, book reviews and reference material concerning the following major works written by Dr. Laidlaw: Housing You Can Afford; The Campus and the Community; The Man from Margaree; and Co-operatives in the Year 2000. Also included is material for a unpublished novel entitled "Littleton" depicting life in a rural Cape Breton town and for another planned work on co-operatives based on a selection of articles written by Dr. Laidlaw in the Maritime/Atlantic Co-operator.
