Explanatory Note:

Note explicative:

Each AV item is a recording of a single interview session, sometimes on multiple cassettes. All of the interviews have digital transcripts, which are under the same restrictions as their corresponding AV items unless otherwise indicated. In cases where only the digital version of the transcript exists, the “Nos. de dossiers/File no.” column reads “Digital transcripts.”

Some interviews also have corresponding hard-copy transcripts. In cases where a hard-copy version of the transcript is available, the “Nos. de dossiers/File no.” column indicates the file number associated with the hard-copy transcript. These transcripts are under the same restrictions as their corresponding AV items, unless otherwise indicated. They are contained in Volumes 1-4.

Ex.

Vol. 3, File 4 is the hard-copy transcript corresponding to the recording of the interview with John Phillips (ISN 472190).

Summary of the negotiations – Sommaire des négociations

Appendix

Details of Access Restrictions

1. Signing the Cecil-Ross Society History Project Access Consent form constitutes permission from the donor for consultation and reproduction.

2. Stipulation 4 of the Cecil-Ross Society History Project Access Consent form reads: “any interviews for which no interview permission/permission addendum exists shall be deemed to be protected by anonymity until the statutory expiration of copyright under the laws of Canada in effect at the time of the interview. In the absence of authorization, these interviews may be auditioned, but shall not be quoted or referenced. Sociological data contained therein is available for blind statistical purposes only.”

However, it has been determined that it is more appropriate for these interviews to be CLOSED until the expiration of copyright under the laws of Canada in effect at the time of the interview, ie. 50 years from the date of the recorded interview. As such, stipulation 4 of the Cecil-Ross Society History Project Access Consent form should be disregarded in favour of the restriction indicated in the Restricted Access Form.

3. In cases where a release form exists but no access preferences are indicated on the Permission Addendum, access will be subject to permission from interviewee(s) and from donor, until interviewee's decease, after which time only donor's permission is required. It is the responsibility of the researcher to determine whether the interviewee is living or deceased.

3a. Researchers must sign the Cecil-Ross History Project Access Consent form.
