59006 - Off English soil and onto the Mauritania, some of the 5,000 Cdns due in Halifax Dec 11, embark at Liverpool under the supervision of SGT. A.J. PATTERSON, RCCS, of Toronto, and LT.G. CLERK, of Montreal, who are also sailing on this trip.

59007 - The return trip home is not a pleasure trip for everybody. SGT. R.B. HILL, RCASC, of Ottawa, finds a secluded spot away from the turmoil of embarking troops as he checks over the draft figures.

59008 - High on a mountain of kit bags, CPM.D. CURRIE, RCEME, of Morin Creek, Sask., holds the fort as the cranes swing load upon load into the hold of the ship.

59009 - Not used.

59010 - Repatted Cdns aboard the Mauritania take an interest in the loading operations as case after case of oranges are stored for the forthcoming trip to Halifax.

59011 - Behind the scenes, to move the 5,000 Cdns back to Canada, is a lot of complicated paper work. Secluded in one of the cabins are MAJ. HISLOP, of Toronto, and CAPT. SCOTT, of Montreal, both of Movement Control, who have been responsible for embarking many thousands of Cdns since VE-Day.

59012 - With a kit full of prized possessions and a few Army issues, a Cdn soldier aboard the SS Mauritania at Liverpool, eager for the five day trip which will bring them home to their folks for a real white Christmas.

BAIRD was a member of the British Cdn Arctic Expedition in 1936-39 which conducted a general scientific exploration for two winters. He went along as a geologist and surveyor and the expedition, led by T.H. MANNING, mapped some new country. When war broke out in 1939 COL BAIRD was at Frob Inlet, but he came out on the Scorpia landing Halifax. He joined the Army as a gunner and spent four years overseas with the 7th Field Battery. He was also a member of 1d Commando Unit in 1942-43, a mixed force of British, Canadian, and Norwegian, formed to do raids on Norway. "Unfortunately," said COL BAIRD, "the raid never came off." He returned home in December, 1943, trained the Lovat Scouts at Jasper during 1944 after which he did operational research at Ottawa before being selected to lead Exercise Muskrat. COL BAIRD is married, has three children and a wife overseas. His father lives in Scotland.
