PHOTOGRAPHER: Lt. F. L. Duberville -- Roll No 42 -- 20 Aug 44
 LOCATION: Chartres, France.
 OCCASION: Funeral of victims of bombing raids and German gun-fire.

STORY: Following the occupation of Chartres, France, by American Forces, it didn't take the Fighting French of the Interior (F.F.I.), long to aid the armies of liberation in freeing the city of the last of German forces. Banding themselves together into an Army, The F.F.I. rendered valuable aid in directing the American troops and also in ferreting out German snipers from houses and other places where they had taken up position, sniping sniping at everyone and everything that went by. Prior to the entering of the U. S. Troops, bombing of the outskirts of the city had killed a number of the F.F.I.s in addition, bullets from German weapons ended the lives of a number of others. So five days after the first American troops entered the city, a joint funeral was held for all the victims to the famous cathedral in Chartres. Here Mass was said for the fallen while practically all the residents of the community turned out to pay homage to their fellow countrymen. The coffins were carried to and from the Cathedral on horse drawn wagons while members of the F.F.I. acted as a guard of honour.

- 39066 - Pictures here is a German half-track vehicle which was captured by the F.F.I. In it are members of the F.F.I. armed with sten-guns, French rifles and other weapons, as they moved off from in front of the jail at Chartres to round up some more Germans.
- 39067 - Pictured here with members of the F.F.I. is one of the many young French girls of Chartres who are members of the "Maquis" the name generally used for the F.F.I. She, along with other women, have rendered valuable aid to the Liberation Forces in supplying information and doing other work.
- 39068 - Pictured here are the coffins of victims of the bombing and German gun-fire as they were borne to the Church for Mass.
- 39069 - A picture taken from the Church entrance looking out as the coffin of one of the victims was carried into the edifice by firemen of Chartres who are wearing the uniform of the fire service, blue trousers and tunics with chromium plated helmets.
- 39070 - Pictured here are members of the F.F.I. as they marched into the Cathedral carrying their weapons at the trail.
- 39071 - Another view of the Church as members of the F.F.I. entered the edifice to attend Mass.

 LOCATION: Paris, France.
 STORY: Occupation of Paris by Allied Troops.

Residents of Paris went wild with enthusiasm as French and American troops occupied the city and drove the remaining Germans from its environments. Considerable fighting occurred in the city this morning as the troops cleared the Germans from buildings and strong points. But this did not stop the population from turning out, to give tremendous welcome to the troops. At times the people had to take shelter behind walls, etc., from flying bullets. After the shooting would die down they would rush on to the streets again and there shout and cheer the soldiers on.

- 39133 - A close up shot of the bank with French soldiers in the background.
- 39134 - Notre Dame Cathedral, famous throughout the world, is pictured here with tanks of the French Armoured Division in the background.
- 39135 - Pictured here is a scene along the Seine River
39136 with billowing smoke in the distance from buildings set afire from German shell-fire.
- 39137 - The firemans band from Paris, dressed in dark blue uniforms and silver like helmets, kept up a continuous selection of music throughout the afternoon. They played as troops moved forward to the centre of the city and as German prisoners were brought back. Pictured here is an overhead shot of the band and hundreds of spectators.
- 39138 - Notre Dame Cathedral is seen here in another picture with army jeeps in the foreground and the milling thousands of Parisiens.
- 39139 - Residents of Paris are seen here taking shelter behind a stone wall along the Seine River as German small arms fire drove them to cover.
- 39140 - The Hotel de Ville Square is pictured here with 39141 thousands of residents of Paris as they awaited
39142 the arrival of Gen DeGaulle. Standing for hours in a burning sun the milling thousands were disappointed as Gen DeGaulle did not arrive during the afternoon and as evening wore on the crowd dispersed.

STORY: French Armoured Division Entering City.

Today was a joyous day for the populace of Paris, France, As the French Armoured Division, which had been waiting on the outskirts of the metropolis, rolled into the city, freeing the residents from ~~from~~ German aggression. Thousands of people jammed the streets to welcome the troops and so dense were they at times that they stopped the vehicles. Police had to clear a way for the armoured vehicles to roll forwards to the centre of Paris where fighting is still going on. Flowers, fruit, wine, and cigarettes were thrown to the troops as they crept along the crowd lined streets. Members of the Free French Resistance Movement aided the troops in hunting out remaining pockets of German resistance.

Story: Official reception for Gen. De Gaulle

A joyous occasion for the people of Paris - the official visit of Gen. De Gaulle was turned into chaos this afternoon when German snipers opened up on the assembled thousands in front of Notre Dame Cathedral, and in the ensuing wild scrabble by the people for shelter, hundreds were injured. The French Armoured Division, which had been assembled for the occasion opened fire in return and members of the F.F.I. hunted out the snipers from their various places of vantage. Gun fire from both sides continued for some time on the streets of Paris.

- 39274 - Tanks of the French Armoured Division are pictured 39275 here as they moved through the crowded Concorde Square in Paris to participate in the reception of Gen. De Gaulle
- 39276 - Pictured here is the grave of the French "Unknown Soldier" where Gen. De Gaulle laid a wreath and paid homage to him. On the sign is the wording "Movement National des Prisonniers et Deportees."
- 39277 - Pictured here is the Arc de Triomphe underneath of which is the grave of the unknown French soldier. To the right of the picture are the tanks and guns of the French Armoured Division.
- 39278 - Gen. LeClerc, G.O.C. in C. of the French Armoured Div is pictured here as he inspected some of his tanks and half tracks assembled in front of the Arc de Triomphe.
- 39279 - French nurses, headed by members carrying flags of all the nations, are pictured here as they arrived at the Arc de Triomphe, to participate in the ceremony.
- 39280 - The persons in this picture are unidentified as it is therefore no good.
- 39281 - Gen. de Gaulle is pictured here as he approached the Arc de Triomphe where he placed a wreath on the grave of the "Unknown Soldier". He is accompanied by high French Army officials.
- 39282 - Gen. De Gaulle is pictured here as he saluted when he approached the grave of the Unknown Soldier.

 39288 the reception for Gen DeGaulle.
 39289

39290 - Crowds filled every window in the buildings to witness the spectacle. Pictured here are windows filled with people. Union Jacks and other flags can be seen adorning the walls.

39291 - From here on the shooting started and I do not
 39292 know what the rotation of the pictures are. There
 39293 are scenes in front of Notre Dame Cathedral with 39294 people lying down on the streets; a lone Red Cross worker crouched beside his bicycle with damaged windows in the background and members of the F.F.I. behind sand bagged barricades taking shots at snipers. There are a few blanks in this lot also but whatever pictures are here are of the shooting scenes.
