Capt Duckett who is with the press censorship branch, stopped to converse with Mr. Soyez on points of interest in Paris. Capt Duckett was one of the first Canadians to enter Paris.
- 39407 - The priests pictured here are Canadians having been in St. Denis prison on the outskirts of Paris for four years after they were captured by the Germans when France collapsed. During those four years the priests, along with many other Canadians in the prison, spent their time at studying and enjoying whatever sports they could organize among themselves. It was long waiting, but only when Paris was liberated by the combined French and American Armies did they get out of prison. They report that the Germans who had been guarding them, left the prison early on the morning Paris was liberated, leaving the doors of the prison open so that the inmates could make their way out. The priests, all members of the Fraternite Sacerdotale at Three Rivers, Que., are front row left to right: Joseph Boisvert, Three Rivers, Que., Laurent Frechette, Drummonville, Que., Charles Garceau, Three Rivers, Que., Armand Proulx, Danville, Que.  Story: Captured Canadian Soldiers & German Wounded in Hospital

Wounded and taken prisoners by the Germans at Veriers, near Caen, on July 21, when the 2nd. Canadian Infantry Division was making its great push towards Falaise three members of the Fusiliers Mount Royal ended up in a German controlled Hospital in Paris. Before the city was liberated by French & American troops, the three were taken by French nurses in the hospital to another place in the city and kept in hiding there until the Allied soldiers took over the city. One of them, Cpl. Jules Parent, 2068 Chambly Street, Montreal, who was wounded in the leg, assisted Maj. Fernand Mousseau of Hull, Que., in working with the F.F.I. in organization work with the underground movement. But his leg became sore again and he had to return to his place of hiding. Maj. Mousseau worked on with the F.F.I. and has since left to rejoin his unit, also the F.M.R. The three are now being cared for in the Salpetriere Hospital by French nurses and doctors. They are able to move about although their wounds are not entirely healed. They said their medical care by the Germans was practically nil and that they went for days with the same bandages. When the Germans evacuated the hospital, which is the oldest in Paris, they took all medical supplies with them, leaving wounded Germans behind.

Masson, a nurse at the Salpetriere hospital; L/Cpl. Roland Fleury (1975 Rue Dorion Street) Montreal, who was wounded by two bullets in the leg; Miss L. Roger, Radiographic service at the Petie Hospital which had been used by the Germans as a Military Hospital and from which the three Canadians escaped.

39521 - A front view showing the entrance to the S  p  triere Hospital where the three Canadian soldiers are now recuperating from their wounds. They will rejoin their unit as soon as they are well enough. The clothing they are wearing is clothing which the civilians have given them as their army uniforms were taken by the Germans.

Some 459 Germans were left behind in the Petie Hospital when they evacuated Paris. All of the Germans were wounded so badly they they could not walk away. Now they are under the care of French doctors and nurses who are restoring their health to normal. A gaurd of French soldiers has been posted at the hospital to prevent any of the soldiers from escaping. Assisting the French nurses are two members of the Saniteater German Red Cross workers. The Germans are being given the best of care in contrast to the poor medical treatment the Canadian soldiers received when they were in the same hospital. A number of Canadian wounded soldiers who were in hospital at the time Paris was liberated were taken back by the retreating Germans.

to Today the Canadian Flag alongside the French 39762 Tri-Color is flying on the exact spot where once the Hun stood gazing at the horizon with a dream of invading the coasts of the British Isles.

A little over two years after the Dieppe Raid the Canadians paraded through the streets of this liberated little French town amidst the cheering hungry French, of the Canadians they said, "In August 1942, They came, They saw, They conquered".

~~This perhaps would serve as a lead for the following

- 39950 - Being able to dock right at the harbour in Dieppe proved a great "Boom" to the Canadians as supplies were kept going forward to the fighting men in a steady stream.
- 39951 - Loaded with valuable supplies and equipment of war this allied ship drops anchor in the Harbour in Dieppe to keep the boys in the fighting zones supplied.
- 39952 - Pte. E.W. Pritchard, Port Colborne, Ont., gives a serious study to a box mine placed on a harbour road at Dieppe by the enemy before their hasty retreat.
- 39953 - Showing a mass of tangled wire and other odd scraps of debris of war, this shot of Dieppe harbour was taken shortly after the Canadians had taken over from the rapidly retreating Nazis. Unlike the last trip to Dieppe the Canadians found the going easier and the results far more effective.
- 39954 - With the camera pointed through a barbed wire entanglement the army photographer came up with this interesting study of Dieppe Harbour, as it appeared to the Canadians playing a second engagement on these grounds.
- 39955 - Not only had the Nazis used miles of barbed wire in their futile effort to guard Dieppe Harbour, but as this picture shows, along the water edge they had placed stakes to act as both man and tank traps.
- 39956 - Some general ideas of the Nazi Preparedness at Dieppe Harbour can be gathered from a close study of this picture, wire and stakes, land mines and hidden flame throwers, operated by remote control were some of the main devices used by the enemy.
- 39957 - A land mine comes out on the harbour road at Dieppe.

 Story: Re-opening of harbour.

Dieppe harbour, which has been in German hands for the past four years, is again operating bringing in supplies from Britain for the Allied armies in Europe. By the use of the harbour supply lines to the front have been considerably shortened. Before the Germans evacuated the town without putting up a struggle for it, they carried out demolitions along the wharfs and even sunk ships across the mouth of the harbour to prevent the Allies from using it immediately. However, soon after the town was taken by the Canadians, engineers went to work and it was not long until L.C.T's and other small craft were making their way from England to Dieppe loaded with supplies. In a few days time it is expected, that ships of 3,000 tons will be able to use the harbour.
