- 2625 " " 2 1/2 inch steam water
- 2626 The Principles of the Turbine
be allowed to escape
- 2627 Steam generated in kettle serves useful purpose & in C. 16-6
- 2628 Steam generated in boiler has much to do " "
- 2629 Method of using steam in reciprocating engine familiar
- 2630 Working of steam in turbine not so obvious " "
- 2631 In turbines, steam energy is converted to turning power
- 2632 Turbines are built to operate on two principles " "
- 2633 Impulse Turbine water on water wheel " "
- 2634 Principle of impulse turbine shown by impact of flowing water
- 2635 Impact of steam could be used instead of water " "
- 2636 Brunel's engine 1628 " "
- 2637 A high velocity steam jet which recoils like a bullet
- 2638 High velocity jet strikes blades from one side, vaporizes
- 2639 Steam jet fired down & concentrated by tapering nozzle
- 2640 Separation of blade & changing direction of flow of steam
- 2641 Impulse is increased by multiplying blades & increasing steam jet
- 2642 Impulse further increased by multiplying no. of high velocity
- 2643 Nozzles are formed combined to form compact groups
- 2644 Reaction Turbine
- 2645 Early example - the horizontal turbine of 1889
- 2646 Later pressure in lower part of turbine decreases from center
- 2647 Increase of pressure into up part, but equal to pressure
- 2648 Efficiency increases as reaction is increased
- 2649 Steam could be used to rotate the turbine
- 2650 Steam Engine for vertical turbine model 2921
- 2651 Hollow disc wheel or rotor could be used instead of
- 2652 Curved nozzle, rectangular in section could be used with steam from side
- 2653 Similar effect would be produced if nozzle was supplied from top fitted with nozzles
- 2654 Greatly increased turning effect would be produced if steam
- 2655 Blades are formed which are made high velocity
- 2656 Space between any two adjacent moving blades functions as a nozzle
- 2657 Rotor will then revolve because of nozzle effect of moving blades
- 2658 Steam is directed to moving blades by guide blades set in casing
